

Stephen Dredge
Meridian Urban

Biography

Stephen combines his passions of strategic land use planning and settlement resilience in his planning work. He has over 16 years of experience in Australia and overseas as an urban planner with a passion for helping people think differently and improving the way we plan. He provides thought leadership and executive level direction to dealing with the modern-day challenges of planning systems reform, risk-based land use planning, resilience, climate adaptation, and statutory planning.