

Colby Crane
Urbis

Biography

Colby is a highly skilled engagement and communications practitioner with over 15 years' experience in the property, mining, water and sewerage, telecommunications, not for profit, local, state and federal government sectors.

With a strong media and communications background, Colby excels at relationship building, business partnering and driving engagement to achieve shared value experiences and project deliverables.

Colby has a particular focus in crisis management strategies, communications and government relations, which were heavily applied in her mining, infrastructure and local, state and federal government experience.

Her past work in Local Government on the Love Our Living Lakes Project was a National Finalist: Government Communication Australia Awards and winner of two Keep NSW Beautiful Awards for communication and engagement programs.

Colby has led a number of national engagement and communication initiatives resulting positive project results and mutual outcomes for the community and her clients.