

Jefa Greenaway
University of Melbourne/Greenaway Architects

Planning in the age of Treaty - reflections of an Indigenous practitioner

What is the current thinking and intersection between Indigenous history/culture and the built environment and how do we navigate the relationship between education/curriculum and the inhibitors to Indigenous voices being truly reflected within planning and allied professions?