

Laura Crommelin
City Futures Research Centre, UNSW

Biography

Laura Crommelin is a Research Lecturer at the City Futures Research Centre at UNSW Sydney, working on projects related to urban and housing policy, and teaches planning law in the Faculty of Built Environment's City Planning program. Laura's research interests cover a range of trends and issues in post-industrial cities, including urban redevelopment, urban governance, digital disruptions (e.g. Airbnb), place branding, and DIY revitalisation practices. She holds a PhD in urban planning from UNSW, an M.Litt in US Studies from the University of Sydney and a BA/LLB (Hons) from the University of Melbourne.